The police are to enforce the anti-snow bylaw in the downtown sections of the city, merchants being required to clear off the walks in order that customers can get to their stores without wading. This will be done by the police if necessary, less walkways exposed to the public, it is decided.

Walking conditions in residential districts are commonly worse in winter than they are in the business areas. There being less traffic, the snow is not so quickly trampled down. Frequently what less walkways appear to the public, it is decided.

If the Government can supply interest free money to a private corporation, which it did right in the case of the CPR, why can't it supply itself with interest free money by issuing Dominion bills which are needed and paying its obligations with them? Why should the Government pay anybody one cent for the privilege of issuing its own bills?

In other words, the delegates shrewdly surmised that this might be the first step in creating something resembling the cystey system that is in operation in the older provinces. Under that arrangement, the cystey could have to maintain jail, auxiliary roads and roads, with what measure of assistance it can wheedle out of the provincial treasury.

The farmers of Alberta are not just now pinning for larger municipal powers. Responsibilities, and the will to do the responsible thing, are the scheme in the times we're improving. Down to the good business from the stand-point of the banks. They take in four dollars for three dollars paid out. The rate of profit is 33 1/3 per cent.

In the long run they are in one per cent on $50,000,000 to be reckoned on the value of the transaction. The cost of expense and trouble is such that in that making two cross entries in the books.

The Government of course is out the one per cent. In effect the Dominion is paying one per cent for the use of the money. That is a good deal. One per cent on $50,000,000 amounts to $500,000 per year added to the demands upon the taxpayers.

A year ago Government loaned $1,500,000 to the C.P.R. without interest, in order to keep the railway running. The C.P.R. has been paying an unusual amount of the public credit but entirely justified in the circumstances. Where it got the money is not stated. It is to be supposed, and hoped, that it simply printed and handed over the

SIDE GLANCES - By George Clark

"I'd be glad to do anything, Mr. Wells. You see, I've been out of work for five months."

On This Date

—A Day in Canadian History—

By Fred Williams

On this date in 1797, George Weisbath, a former Lieutenant in the Sixth Regiment, at Montreal, was sentenced to death by court martial for a series of crimes committed by Notary Pierre Leduc, in which he acknowledged his indebtedness of twenty-four to Richard Dillon, proprietor of the Montreal hotel, and as security delivered to his creditor the female slave, Lady. A condition of the sentence stipulated that she was to work for Dillon until Weisbath's debt should be paid, principal and interest.

Weisbath did not stand what the outcome was whether Lady worked out the debt, whether Weisbath returned to England, or what was the basis of the debt. Probably it was a soldier's pay and consequent inability to pay a bond bill.

The leutenant apparently preferred sacrificing his slave to saving his liberty for imprisonment.

The Passing Show

By J. S. Couper

Mr. Speaker Black has ruled that the epithet "four-flusher" cannot be used in the Canadian House of Commons. The Speaker of the House is an old Yukoner and not meaty-mouthed, one would think.

It was the deputy-Speaker who started "four-flushers" on its Parliamentary career so recently as Oct. 31. Mr. Lavergne said, in speaking of Mr. Bradette, member for Temiskaming North, that he never used the term. When Mr. Bradette read the remark in Hansard next day, he protested to the House. Mr. Speaker then ruled that he could not regard the term as unparliamentary. Mr. Lavergne, however, rose to the occasion and withdrew the word.

As a result, when Mr. Mackenzie King used the word in an attack on the Minister of Trade and Commerce, the Speaker did not wait for Mr. Stevens to object, but promptly placed the word "four-flusher" in the Hansard.

Even the word "four-flusher" as applied to a person, is not particularly good, perhaps, but it is quite sensitive, like the woman in the London police corps who said "She called me a 'bird-widower' so I hopped up the rail of water and threw it over her."

Canadian legislatures shall now oblige Bounder in their ranks. I am told, to the great lament of John D. Louderback, who is a member of the House of Commons, that honourable gentlemen on the other side were incapable of speaking the truth. Instructed to apologize, the recalcitrant John said, "Well, Mr. Speaker, if it's an offence in this House to speak the truth, then I'm afraid that passed at Victoria, but it wouldn't pass at Ottawa."

However, the English vocabulary is still ample, especially if handled with a pretty wit. Words are more effective used as rhymes than as clauses. Yet, in reading the Hansard, I find one of the comments of Mr. Bradette to be quite remarkable.

On the editor of the London Free Press dated Nov. 1882, protesting against the statement of Colonel Grey to the effect of Wycombe. Dairrell was a younger man in politics then, but his letter was very clever and forcible. His last paragraph read:

"Colonel Grey is compelled to leave the regimental camp at Wycombe during his vacation, and accounts for the want of popular currency by the usual story of a mob hired by his opponent.

Colonel Grey has been misinformed. I have hired a mob to shoot him. The hothead is quite gratified."

When one can put words like this, he need not be called an opponent a "four-flusher" or a "squatter".

A remarkable murder trial ended at Vernon in British Columbia last week—really three trials with three different verdicts.

The police chief of Kelowna—that little beauty town in the land of the sun-grown Eden of the Okanagan Valley—was shot to death a beautiful suburban female police officer.

The motive was wrapped in mystery, as no love element was discovered. Insanity was the defense given by the son of the victim, who claimed his father was of illegitimate birth.

The first jury disagreed. At the second trial the jury found him guilty of murder with a strong recommendation to mercy because of mental derangement.

On the third trial the jury found him guilty because of insanity.

Brisbane the historian, tells of a previous case at Alton, Ill., where a highly educated contrabandist, Verdict, was returned. During the early sixties, an Indian was caught by a settler, an American, in the act of robbing a potato patch.

The American, thinking to merely frighten the Indian, shot him with a pistol and fled the scene. The Indian acted as if nothing had happened to him.

The settlers, however, pursued him and he was captured.

Verdict, however, was not condemned to death because he was found to be a man of average intelligence.

"He is not fit to die," said the judge.

"We find the Indian had not been dead by being 'worn to death' by his tortures," said the judge.

"That is a sign of torture," said the judge.

New Peace Spirit Is Built On Facts, Not Sentiment

Large Meeting Concludes Convention and Brings New Thoughts

Spurring to a close a three-day annual meeting of the Canadian Council of Women in Edmonton, and indicative of the newer disarmament spirit based on economics and cold facts, rather than sentiment, a coldly attended meeting was held in First United Methodist Church, November 20. Held under the auspices of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, Edmonton branch, with 28 local organizations represented, the meeting brought forth many shades of opinion and many vital points of view on the question of world disarmament.

The evening meeting was a most enlightening one, with Father W. H. Cahill, bringing in a resume of the result of the first period of the disarmament conference, and asking the question, "Is it possible to end war?" President Hoover's proposal for the reduction of world armaments came from the floor, and the discussion on the government to support measures of peace was a frank exchange of views on the part of the private manufacture of arms. It was pointed out that the U.S. is the only nation in the world that has given up war.

Father MacLellan drew attention to the fact that he, a Catholic priest, spoke against war, and that a previous speaker, drawn by a Presbyterian minister, and that a previous speaker, makes strange bedfellows," he remarked. He congratulated the organization on its work, and said that he had often felt that a great need in assuring world peace was to attack the cause of war at its root, and to stir up war. The masses of the people have the best right.

Women Discuss How to Insure Future Peace

Substitutes for War, Disarmament, Education Necessary for Peace

It is necessary to find some substitutes for the existence and development of war, which must be constructive rather than destructive policies.

That is what was stressed by Mrs. M. H. Long when she spoke on the subject of "The War of the World" for the Glory and Existence of War," at the women's meeting under the auspices of the W.I.L.F. in the First Baptist Church, November 19.

The cause of the glory and existence of battle for love of country and for the sake of the world is one of the most noble of human impulses, but it is misleading in war.

Peace, however, is a source of suffering, and an appreciation of the glorious traditions of the country, and the world, is important.

Speaking on the same subject, Mrs. A. S. Tuttie thought that the primary instincts of humanity in love and sympathy of the individual, and the instinct of the species, are the dynamic forces of human life.

She should be a sincere advocate of the man's land, a knowledge of the past, and an appreciation of the present.

Following the talk given by Mrs. Long, the discussion was opened, and today the feeling of the campaign was expressed by Mrs. Kinnear, who told in the Elsie House conference last fall at which such questions were discussed, that the young students from B.C. to Nova Scotia who signed an armaments reduction petition, and the young men and women studying the problems and of Justice League of Nations groups here, were the ones who would be achieved in the Present Economic Order.

"Achieved in the Present Economic Order" was the great question that was growing in the thought and study, and with which the peace propaganda abhorred in a house of sentiment, but failed to move the heart of the public in the subject, the present economic state having its effect on the public mind.

Mrs. Margaret Kinney, secretary of Margaret the Alberta Association, gave a brief a report of the work done under the auspices of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom.

For the first time, university young people had in the past built up a wall against the world, and the world against peace talk. Today because they cannot find a place to work in a world where there is no place for great struggle, they are looking into the causes and effects of war and peace.

They realize that they will pay if there is another war, and that it is a rude awakening, but an effective one, and today the feeling of the campaign is expressed by Mrs. Kinnear, who told in the Elsie House conference last fall at which such questions were discussed, that the young students from B.C. to Nova Scotia who signed an armaments reduction petition, and the young men and women studying the problems and of Justice League of Nations groups here, were the ones who would be achieved in the Present Economic Order.

"Achieved in the Present Economic Order" was the great question that was growing in the thought and study, and with which

Social-Personal

University youth was now concerned. In the absence through illness of Mr. Ted Manning, Mr. A. J. H. Powell gave a stirring talk on "What is the spirit of the soldier who went to the trenches thinking of protection for his country?" Examinations of gaunt intelligent military maniacs, and a stirring home coming under the crazy pattern of madness, much filth and brutality of the mind, were presented to the audience in a forceful manner as to leave no doubt in the minds of those present that the battle was not far from battle. The "torch" which these soldiers in flanders had lit, was a blinding light to all who saw it. There was a tantalizing whiff of death in the air, and the class was sitting miserably in the class, she dropped her head in despair. That must stand against the sweeping propaganda of the Hitlerites.

The Rev. A. R. Osborn acted as chairman, and Mr. G. C. Scarsell, chairman of the Western Garrison, bringing in a resume of the results of the first period of the disarmament conference, and asking the question, "Is it possible to end war?" President Hoover's proposal for the reduction of world armaments came from the floor, and the discussion on the government to support measures of peace was a frank exchange of views on the part of the private manufacture of arms. HAS LARGE BLUE EYES

Once one has recovered from the grip of the blue eyes, he is being given the full benefit of those unbelievable large and deep blue eyes.

As these two delightful girls came with one after another, we could see to the door for a word, one realized that hers indeed were large and blue eyes, and altogether drowsy eyes of the drowsy, drowsy, drowsy girl.

It is a pleasure to see the girls dealing with the books of Tennyson, John McPhee and Dame Barbara, while Mrs. Thomas Murphy, Mrs. Robert Alexander, Mrs. A. H. Holmes, Mrs. G. A. Gurnett, Mrs. B. Guthrie, Mrs. James Wright, Mrs. A. R. Roland, and Mrs. Alex. Campbell, all of whom are members of the Garrison Officers Badminton Club, will preside at the treasury.

John Michaels and Mrs. R. C. Day, Mrs. G. W. Oliver, Mrs. G. C. McLean and Mrs. W. Macketh and Miss McMullan will be in charge of the refreshments.

In his final lecture, Canon Comyn C. Smith will speak on "Francis Thompson."

Many parties are made up for the dancing being arranged by the theatre managers of the city in connection with the Christmas reunion.

BIG BUSINESS MEETS FARMER IN CONFERENCE

Present Burdens Are Shown to be Intolerable
to Nation

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Holding present burdens on United States agriculture were intolerable and that reductions in farm prices will not help the farmer, said 200 $100,000,000.00 representatives of big business and agriculture concluded a one-day round table conference convened by the National Council of a plan to "establish an equitable price ratio between farm and industry."

The conference included representatives of the grain trade, manufacturers, bankers, labor, transportation, and agricultural interests.

A committee is to be appointed to draft a statement to be presented to the American farmer from his plight.

The conference, sponsored by the meeting here.

"We believe," said Gen. Robert E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck and company, chairman of the meeting, "that the world would come to all of us if the farmer could get some of it."

The forests of Nova Scotia are estimated to be worth $100 million annually in potential 200 million board feet of softwood lumber, 100 million board feet of wood lumber and 50 million cubic feet of pit props and cordwood.

NEW CODE OF BRIDGE RULES AGREED UPON

Duplicate Contract, Pivot and Progressive Regulations

CLEVELAND, Nov. 22.—A new code of bridge rules, duplicate contract, pivot and progressive contract was agreed upon today by the American Bridge League, the United States Bridge Association and the American Whist League.

The new code, however, was left subject to other桥牌 tournaments and pivot and progressive contract was agreed upon today by the American Bridge League, the United States Bridge Association and the American Whist League.

A new code, however, was left subject to other桥牌 tournaments and pivot and progressive contract was agreed upon today by the American Bridge League, the United States Bridge Association and the American Whist League.

ANOTHER NEW CODE. E. McKeen, secretary of the American Bridge League, the most important organization of bridge players, issued the partial score books. This provides for 100 points bonus for successive rounds of a game—a less-than-game contract.

NEW SCORING COUNT

A new scoring count will be adopted by the American Bridge League, 20 boards, and spades 30, and bid trump, the first, third, fifth and ninth boards, and spades 30, and the second, fourth and sixth bids, 40 points each.

It will be necessary to bid and make game in one hand to receive the 100 points bonus.

100 points if declarer's side is not vulnerable, and points if declarer's side is vulnerable.

GRAND SLAM BONUS

Bonus of 1,000 and 1,200 for grand slams, not vulnerable and vulnerable, and 200 and 220 for small slams were granted.

Over trick premiums will be given for 100 points each for bridge which is the same as the bid trick value. The duplicate code can be used for bridge periods announced for rubber bridge, which is progressive as the number of boards.

A new review law is almost identical in nature to that now in force.

Another new provision permits five entries, in teams-of-four events, with all four players sharing equally in the bonuses.

LIQUOR REVENUE IN B. C. DROPS

VICTORIA, Nov. 22.—Liquor revenue for British Columbia under Government Liquor Board for July 1 to Oct. 1, 1932, according to a government report compiled by government auditors for the legislature.

Government officials said they based government liquor profits on the amount of revenue due to come. Besides the decrease in domestic consumption, there was a marked diminution of most of the United States trade as a result of the recent depression.

They also pointed out that with availability of freeboot beer in the United States, there was an increasing demand on the part of the British Columbia people for beer.

"Behind all that, however, is the fact that British Columbia has come to depend largely on the enormous and continuing increasing foreign liquor coming into the country during the last decade. The government liquor profits for large part of its expenditure. Municipalities and hospitals, schools and other institutions. Now with the big liquor profit due to come, the government, it is believed, will find itself faced with major problems if readjustments."

In view of this situation, Finance Minister J. W. Jones has issued a statement in which he urges to give immediate attention to the problem by anything but sharply cut price reductions from provincial government sources.

ROBINS REGAINS MEMORY AT LAST

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Nov. 22.—C. H. Robins, 60, who had lost his memory and his relatives to believe he was recovered by surgery and recuperation, has regained his memory.

The United States government, who was unable to identify him, has been seeking him for more than 20 years. He was found in a San Francisco hospital, where he had been admitted under the name of John Deane. The surgeon, and his wife, Mrs. Robins, who was his nurse, had been looking for him for more than two months, but gave up hope.

Mrs. Robins went to see her son, the Rev. George W. Robins, at his home in Winston-Salem, where he was staying with his wife, Mrs. Robins, and their son, George. They had been looking for him for more than two months, but gave up hope.

When the son, George, Robins, found him, he was taken to the University Hospital, where he was admitted.

Widow -- Her Own Sleuth -- Traps Two as Husband's Killers After Long Hunt

The burning memory of the brutal murder of her husband (upper left) led Rose Gonzales (upper right) on the long trail which now may have led to the capture of his slayers.

BY HELEN WELSHMAN
Tribune Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Rose Gonzales, widow of the man she sought for 10 years, has returned to New York after two years of searching that led her across the continent.

Policemen said she was the first to bring the arrest of two men charged with having killed Michael Gonzales, 34, to the police.

The arrest is the story of a woman who has been hunting down vengeances.

When she first left the trail of the men whom Mrs. Gonzales had accused of slaying her husband, she heard that the man who had been arrested was Spanish. An ocean could stop her.

Julio Perez, 31, and Bernardino Diaz, 28, were arrested in October, charged with having killed Michael Gonzales on Aug. 1, 1931.

Perez, 31, was born in Spain. He had learned that I was in town and gone on to another city."

Upon her return she bought a railroad ticket to that town. He was there. She had been though, that he had been to America, but learned that both men had been at various places. She spent most of her time in New York, trying to learn what she could about the case.

The trial didn't stop much, so she remained in New York, waiting for the men to be tried.

Then she came to the restaurant of the hotel, the young widow remained until the trial was over.

Now she is back in New York, awaiting the trial.

"I saw the men in the room," she says. "I knew them well. I was afraid to go to the hotel. I screamed. When I did they began to shout. I slipped over the floor, I fell, I hit my head on the floor. My husband was shot. But my husband was shot. The men got away."

Perez didn't have much luck in pursuit. It was then that the determined woman started to travel.

"I travelled about and I acted like a gypsy. I never knew where I wanted to go. First, I went to France. In Spain, the town where her husband's family lived, Perez was there. Then I was told I had been to America. So I had learned that I was in town and gone on to another city."

Upon her return she bought a railroad ticket to that town. He was there. She had been though, that both men had been at various places. She spent most of her time in New York, trying to learn what she could about the case.

The trial didn't stop much, so she remained in New York, waiting for the men to be tried.

Then she came to the restaurant of the hotel, the young widow remained until the trial was over.
